To Whom this may apply:

I met Mark Davis several years ago when he was providing delightful dining music at a favorite restaurant of mine on the South Shore.

Over time, a friendship developed, which is how I recently learned of his current work at venues as varied as nursing homes, corporate gatherings and private functions.

His knowledge of what's commonly referred to as the American Songbook, coupled with his prodigious skills at the keyboard, make him a truly gifted entertainer.

But it's his warm personality and genuine friendliness that endear him to his listeners and prompted this unsolicited letter. I'm more than his friend; I am also his fan, and so I offered to give him this letter of introduction to share with anyone who might be thinking of using him. Believe me, that would be a great decision.

Good piano players are welcome anywhere, but Mark is so much more than a good one; indeed, he's terrific!

I hope this helps in any consideration you might give him.

Respectfully,
